Note on the Calendar and Restoration

We do not treat the Gregorian calendar as covenant authority for time. Its dates are used only as practical civil markers while we live in exile.

The complete restoration of covenant worship awaits the regathering; however, calendrical order is preserved in the ancient writings. Jubilees 6:23-32 describes fifty-two weeks, or 364 days, divided into four 91-day seasonal divisions, while 1 Enoch 72 describes the ordered annual course of the sun. Under the reckoning followed here, the appointed days below are counted from the calendar anchor shown here.

Keep the Way blameless

"Six days work will be done, but the seventh day is a Shabbat of solemn rest, a consecrated convocation. You will do no work on it; it is the Shabbat of זא'א in all your dwellings." - Wayyiqra 23:3
